

Good [morning/afternoon], everyone.

Thank you for being here today. I'm [your name], and I'm excited to talk about currency. Today, we'll look at how currency started, how it works, and what the future might hold. Let's get started!

Currency is a symbol of each country's economy.

It shows economical status and values.

Currency is what we use to trade and buy things, but it's more than just money. It has a long history, from bartering to coins, paper money, and even digital currencies like Bitcoin.

The currency of Turkey is lira.

The currency of England is pond.

The currency of Italy is euro.

The currency of Canada is Canadian dollar.

The currency of China is renminbi.

Aslo money in the form of paper or coins, issued by a government and accepted at face value, is known as currency. goods and services are exchanged directly for other goods and services
