Penguins are very interesting birds that live in the southern hemisphere. They don't use their <sup>1</sup> _____ for flying like most birds. They use them like fish use their <sup>2</sup> _____ to help them to swim fast. Penguins are very good at swimming. They can stay under water for about 20 minutes without coming up for air and they can swim as fast as 24 kilometres per hour. They have lots of black and white <sup>3</sup> _____, which keep them warm in cold places. They often stand close together to keep warm, too. They catch fish in their <sup>4</sup> _____ and eat them whole.

Unfortunately some penguins, for example, the Galapagos Penguin, are now endangered. This is because their habitat is in danger from pollution and climate change. Sometimes, they also get caught up in large fishing nets. We need to protect them so that they don't become extinct. If you want to help, then you can support organisations that protect endangered animals in the wild.

My name is John Brown and my favourite book is Tom Brown's Schooldays, which was written in 1857 by Thomas Hughes. The book is about a boy called Tom and what he used to do at school.

At the start of the book, Tom is living in a small village in England. Then he goes to Rugby School where he and his friends have lots of adventures. His best friend, Harry East, looks after him when he arrives. The head teacher of the school is called Dr Thomas Arnold and he teaches Tom a lot. At the end of the book, Tom leaves school and goes to university.

I really like this story because the characters are very interesting. Also, the adventures that Tom has with his friends make me think about the adventures that I have with my friends.

I'd recommend Tom Brown's Schooldays to anyone who enjoys reading books about school.
